■ ISSCC Returns to San Francisco

The 1996 edition of the annual International Solid-State Circuits Conference (ISSCC '96) returns to the Marriott Hotel in downtown San Francisco February 8–10. This year's show is themed "System on a Chip" and features the usual assortment of SRAMs, PLLs, latches, and clock circuits in addition to the first disclosure of an upgraded PowerPC 603e microprocessor.

Registration fees run $325 for IEEE members; $350 for nonmembers. Admittance to the nine tutorials costs an additional $50 per session. For more information, or to register, contact ISSCC (Palo Alto, Calif.) at 415.327.6622, or fax 415.321.9692.

■ Wireless Conference Keeps Things Moving

The Arizona Biltmore in Phoenix will host Mobile Insights '96, a conference devoted to mobile and wireless computing and communication. The two-day conference begins February 19 and features nearly two dozen presentations by industry analysts, editors, and business leaders. Featured speakers include Motorola VP Tom Beaver, Dan Rosen of Microsoft, and Compaq General Manager Michael Winkler.

Registration costs $1,795 for both days, with discounts available for two or more people registering together. For more information, or to register, contact Mobile Insights (Cupertino, Calif.) at 800.419.0413 or 408.253.6600; fax 408.253.6608.

■ Compcon Heads to Santa Clara

After 40 straight years in San Francisco, the IEEE Compcon '96 show is moving a few miles south, to Santa Clara. The four-day conclave will be held at the Westin Hotel February 25–28, beginning with six day-long tutorials. This year's focus is on "Technologies for the Information Superhighway," which includes Web servers, mobile systems, workflow management, multimedia authoring and applications, and search engines.

Early registration (before 2/9) costs $325 for IEEE members, $425 for nonmembers. Late registration adds $50. Tutorial sessions are also priced at $325 for members, $425 for nonmembers. For more information, or to register, contact registrar Dave Hunt (Livermore, Calif.) at 510.422.2199; fax 510.422.2495, send e-mail to compcon96@lbl.gov, or visit the Web at www.cse.ucsc.edu/~lisa/compcon96.html.
